LAKEHOUSE GOES FIRST IN 2009

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

LOCH ARBOUR: The first sale of the year for Bielat Santore & Company happened to have been located within ½ mile of their company headquarters in Allenhurst. According to Richard R. Santore, Bielat Santore & Company, Allenhurst, New Jersey, the broker for the sale, the “Lakehouse,” 601 Main Street, Loch Arbour, New Jersey was sold to a family from Little Silver, New Jersey. The Lakehouse is one of the most popular eating and drinking establishments in the area and surprisingly enough, its business has not suffered under the current economic conditions.

Situated on Deal Lake directly across the bridge from Asbury Park and within walking distance of the ocean, the Lakehouse is many things to many people. First and foremost, the facility has a very active bar; actually two bars. Inside there is a huge forty-seat oval bar domed with six flat-screen televisions. Outside there is a spacious tiki-bar complimented by an additional ninety seats for casual dining, where patrons sit under colorful umbrellas during fair-weather months.

Secondly, the Lakehouse offers a variety of tasteful dishes. Everything from a pan-fried chicken sandwich to grouper franchise can be found on the menu. Salads and personal-sized pizzas are always a crowd pleaser. A list of daily specials is what most patrons choose from; always fresh, always original and always cooked to order.

Next; the Lakehouse is the entertainment center of the area. On weekends you can always find a lively duo or small band performing after 10:00 p.m. Sundays and Monday nights the bar is filled with football fanatics. On Tuesday nights you can have your fortune read, and every Thursday night is Monmouth University night at the Lakehouse. Notwithstanding the foregoing, you can usually have yourself characterized by a local artist. If you like your resemblance, it can be framed and hung on the walls of the restaurant with dozens of other comical faces.

But above all, the Lakehouse is a local haven for residents of Interlaken, Loch Arbour, Allenhurst, West Allenhurst, Ocean Township and Deal. Many of these area residents frequent the restaurant more than one night a week. In the summertime, the outside deck is packed with three generations of families from this local following. Grandparents, parents and their college-aged children all call the Lakehouse home, especially during the summer.
